Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Wolff
US patent Number 6,209,048 B1.

As per claims 1-20, Wolff teaches all the concept and limitations of a method for providing network access to a web server in a peripheral device, comprising the steps of: identifying a request from a client received by a host via a network to be forwarded to the web server located on the peripheral device locally coupled to the host; forwarding the request from the host to the web server located on the peripheral device;

Transmitting a response to the request fro the web server located in the peripheral device to the host; and transmitting the response from the host to the client (see fig 1-2; col. 2 line 34 to col. 7 line 12). All the other limitations of the other claims such as opening connection, identifying means, and transmitting means are either implicitly or explicitly taught by wolff (see fig 1-3 and col. 2 line 34-col. 7 line 12).
